Vision

Polar Educators International is a vital international network of educators and researchers aiming to provide a deeper understanding of current polar science. PEI represents trusted leaders working to inspire appreciation and knowledge of the polar regions, their connectedness to all Earth's systems, and importance to all humans across latitudes and cultures.

Goals

- Develop and foster national and international relationships which result in culturally and regionally relevant PEI collaborations, resources, and activities. To develop PEI networks.
- Provide relevant and timely professional development opportunities for both education and scientific communities.
- Developing working relationships with partner organizations.
- Develop a robust, flexible, and useful web presence that is a trusted and accurate resource.

Connecting a Global Community

The purpose of developing this network is to create a workspace for collaboration. We offer more than a list of websites, lesson plans, or activities. Polar Educators International is designed to connect people to people.

Our members are the greatest resource.

Why is this necessary?

For scientists, there is increasing demand for exceptional outreach and science communication. For teachers, it is an imperative to understand the holistic process of science to best teach it our classrooms. By connecting these two professional communities, we can improve science communication and create a scientifically literate society.

Ongoing Products
